

Office of Education's Prevention Services Team Featured at Georgia Event

The Colusa County Office of Education's Prevention Services team, in partnership with Williams Unified School District, was invited to present at the 2021 National Association for the Education of Homeless Children and Youth (NAEHCY) National Conference November 13-16 in Atlanta, Georgia. The NAEHCY is a national association dedicated to ensuring educational equity and excellence for children and youth experiencing homelessness. At the conference, Prevention Services teammates Estefania Guillen Aceves and Claudia Deniz spoke about their efforts supporting the migrant population within Colusa County through projects such as the Migrant Resource Fair, Healing California, and partnerships with county districts.

"Our migrant camp families are considered McKinney Vento, or homeless, because of their high mobility and that they live in transitional housing," Guillen Aceves said. As a result, she continued, "they are one of the populations we work with most to ensure equitable services are provided."

To learn more about services offered by Prevention Services, call (530) 473-1350.